

The trip

You organize a 2-day journey for the members of your organization. You have managed to research the prices, to collect several offers and you have already chosen both a company to conduct the trip, and a place to sleep and eat.

The camp is free for the entire month of October, and you think it would be best if the trip takes place during the first weekend. You want to do your best so that your members are united, and everyone understands and helps each other. You think it is a great chance to achieve this.

You inform the people about the excursion and you announce a deadline within which the members of the organization should tell you who would be able to join until the end of the week. On Thursday you receive confirmation that almost everyone would come. You hire the transport company and the camp for the first weekend of October.

On Friday you also receive confirmation from the rest. It turns out that Nihat is the only one who would not come. You ask if it is convenient for him to tell you the reason. Then Nihat tells you that in the first weekend of October his family celebrates Bayram, and he should be at home.

We are looking forward to hearing from you!
